Take it slow

#NOCRUELTY

We make exclusive goods, with top-quality materials only.

We live in an era of continuous research and transformation aimed to “sustainability, recycling, circular economy, re-use”, where we feel the urge to raise awareness in our consumers about the use of products in Real Leather. The origin of this material is from Middle Ages, when the technology with which humans were acquainted was not enough to contaminate the environment as much as it happens today.

Leather is a by-product of food industry which is recovered, enhanced and dignified. Through this, we aim to invest on circular and sustainable economy.

We don't breed livestock to make Leather. We don't kill animals on the mere purpose of Leather. None of our skins come from Protected Species. Leather comes from the leftovers of food industry products (mostly ovines, bovines and caprines), which otherwise would be disposed of. In fact, we turn scraps into resources.

Real Leather has unique properties. Its three-dimensional twine of fibres lends it flexibility, resistance to stress, ability to adapt into a shape, breathability and, last but not least, durability.

Leather goods are, indeed, more durable than synthetic materials. This is pivotal for environmental sustainability, since the life cycle of a product in Leather is definitely longer and does not entail the pollution generated by synthetic products, from their production to their disposal.

Moreover, “alternative leather” such as vegan leather, imitation leather, faux leather, or – as it is erroneously called – eco-friendly leather, are nothing but materials made of microfibres compound of polyvinyl chloride (PVC), polyurethane (PU) and textile polymers or other derivatives of petroleum.

Thus, there is a substantial difference between authentic Leather and its alternatives. Real Leather is breathable, resistant and durable.

Moreover, the quality of Leather comes from the Animal's quality of life. The higher its well-being, the better its Leather's quality. This means that top-quality Leather can't come from intensive animal farming; as a matter of fact, the tiny flaws on the leather, caused by scratches or insect pricks that the animal may have got itself in the pastures, are marks of quality for the Leather's genuineness.
